

PRESS RELEASE
EUROPEAN EXCELLENCE AWARDS 2009

Brussels, August 28th, 2009

Call for Entries: European Excellence Awards 2009

Companies, communication agencies, associations and NGOs can submit their applications for the European Excellence Awards until Friday, October 9th.

The Awards honour outstanding international achievement in public relations and communications. Applications can be submitted in 56 categories, which cover a wide range of communication disciplines and corporate media, as well as a wide range of industries and national markets across Europe.

A jury of thirty communications experts will decide on the winners, which will be announced in a festive ceremony at the Hofburg Imperial Palace in Vienna, Austria on December 10th.

The European Excellence Awards are hosted by Communication Director, the magazine for corporate communications and public relations in Europe. In 2008, the organisation received over 1100 applications and the Awards Ceremony took place in Budapest in the presence of around 400 communication professionals from all over Europe. Further information can be found online at:

Communication Director is the European magazine for corporate communications and public relations. Communication Director features opinion, stories and studies, as well as introducing new European communications professionals. The magazine is also co-host of the European Communication Summit, which gathers hundreds of leading communications professionals each year. www.communication-director.eu
